Impossible Territory : Ewa Doroszenko and Jacek Doroszenko

The artistic project “Impossible territory” consists of works made in various techniques, including a series of photographs, video works, photographic objects and sound recordings. Sound is an important element of the project – Jacek Doroszenko prepared minimalist spatial sound installations, which tied together with the whole arrangement of the project’s exhibition at Propaganda Gallery in Warsaw. All works were created before the outbreak of the pandemic when online travel seemed to be only an interesting form of entertainment, not the only safe way to travel. Using Google Street View, popular computer games, travel guides and other online sources, we tried to explore how digital culture is changing our perception of the natural landscape.
